

Popular Aphrodisiac Products

There are many products available all over the world today that offers the promise of increased sex appeal to the opposite sex. Though these products are different in terms of solution, from perfumes and colognes, in order to salves and lotions, these products came from one kind of substance which had been widely known for its use as an aphrodisiac. This is pheromone, such as the popular pheromone cologne.

What is Pheromone? According to scientists, pheromone is really a produced or excreted chemical factor that triggers a social response in members of the same species. Although more commonly known among animals and insects compared to humans, modern research had proven that human pheromone can also be used as a form of aphrodisiac which plays an important role in human attraction.

Evidences of Human Pheromones Although many scientists disagree to the existence of human pheromones, a number of researches have been done to prove that human pheromones do exist. One of those was the particular McClintock Effect which states that could perspire can affect other women's period.

This Study Exposed a Group of Women to a Whiff of Perspiration from Other Women

It was found that it caused their menstrual cycles to speed up or slow down with regards to the amount of time in the month the sweat was collected: before, during, or after ovulation. Therefore, this study proposed that there are two types of pheromone involved: "One, produced ahead of ovulation, shortens the particular ovarian cycle; and also the second, produced just at ovulation, and lengthens the cycle".

However, there are also evidences indicating the consequence of human pheromones as aphrodisiac. Although there are still no concrete evidence to suggest this, the one research which a few researchers have done had been with disco bars where men and women mingle with each other in one hot and dark place.

According to them, the fragrance of a man's sweat, specifically those originating from their arm pits, have the strongest potency for increasing their sex appeal, and because the best place have humid weather, the scent of a man's sweat can easily travel to the opposite sex, thus increasing the man's efforts in having one-night stands or more. This also works the same way for women, even though there are still not enough studies done to prove it's existence as an aphrodisiac.

Pheromone Products Because of the effect of human pheromones as aphrodisiac, numerous scientists had sought for ways to grow it as means for further increasing a human's capability in attracting a potential partner. This is the time pheromone products, like human pheromones, had been introduced in the market that contains human pheromones that can be used as aphrodisiac.
